RUSSIAN DESTROYER RUNS THE BLOCKADE

Reported That Whole Port Arthur Fleet Has Escaped.

Important Messages Sent to Czar---Port Can Hold Out a Year Longer.

JAPS DO NOT CONTROL IMPORTANT POSITION

Chefoo, Nov. 16.—It is reported here this evening that the entire Russian fleet at Port Arthur escaped with the torpedo boat destroyer which arrived here last night. There is no confirmation of the report.

BLEW UP VESSEL.
London, Nov. 16.—A report from Chefoo says that Captain Plen blew up his torpedo boat destroyer to prevent the Japanese from entering the harbor and seizing her. The explosion occurred at 7:30 at night.

PORT ARTHUR SAFE.
Chefoo, Nov. 16.—The commander of the Russian torpedo boat destroyer which arrived here last night, whose name is Plen, said today that not only the Liao Lishun forts, but all the important positions around Port Arthur are controlled by the Russians.

The Japanese have recently made no gains, and there is sufficient food and ammunition and coal at the Port to last a year.

He said, "I left Port Arthur at midnight in a blinding storm. The boat braved all dangers of floating mines without a mishap. Reaching the open sea we saw a Japanese cruiser and some torpedo boats in the darkness, but we were steaming rapidly through the storm and as lights were extinguished we passed them unnoticed and reached Chefoo without a mishap of any kind."

IMPORTANT TIDINGS.
St. Petersburg, Nov. 16.—Gen. Stoessel and Admiral Wiren have advised the emperor of the condition at Port Arthur through the medium of the destroyer, which ran the blockade. The importance of the information is apparent from the fact that the torpedo boat destroyer was deliberately sacrificed in order to get communication from the beleaguered garrison.

Russian Vessel at Chefoo.

Chefoo, Nov. 16.—The Russian torpedo boat destroyer Rastorpnay put into this harbor this morning. Firing was heard half an hour before she entered the harbor. The captain of the Chinese cruiser Hai Yung was the first person to board the Rastorpnay. He held a brief conference with her commander, after which the Rastorpnay came further in the stream and anchored in the same spot the destroyer Ryeshitnel did last August before she was cut out by the Japanese.

The destroyer Rastorpnay was pursued into Chefoo harbor by Japanese cruisers, after running the blockade at Port Arthur. She will disarm, and remain in the harbor here until the close of the war, according to the statements of officers to Chinese officials.

Mystery surrounds the cause of her departure from Port Arthur. She ran out of the harbor in a severe storm at the risk of being sunk by Japanese mines. It is believed she carried important messages and now that her mission is accomplished Russia is perfectly willing to disarm the vessel.

The Rastorpnay brought a number of copies of the Novakral, a Port Arthur newspaper. In one of the issues it is stated that while a Japanese destroyer was laying mines November 11, she was surprised by the battleship Retvizan and sunk.

Gen. Stoessel in Hospital.
Headquarters Third Japanese army before Port Arthur, Nov. 16, via Fusan.—It is reported that a wound received by General Stoessel has necessitated his confinement in the hospital, that he refused to relinquish command of the garrison, and that he has issued orders to the troops to die at their posts rather than surrender. It is said the spirit of the Russian troops has been dampened by continuous work, the lack of supplies and the hopelessness of their ability to make any successful defense of the fortress. It is said further that many of the Russian soldiers are ready to surrender, but are kept at their posts by the officers, who threaten them with revolvers and that several soldiers who were suspected of a desire to desert have been shot as a warning to others. The Japanese now believe the garrison has almost reached the limit of human endurance.

Gen. Stoessel Certainly Hurt.
Chefoo, Nov. 16.—Captain Plen brings news that Sayharoff, the former Governor of Dalney and lately principal engineer at Port Arthur, died of enteric fever. He confirms the report that Gen. Stoessel is wounded.

Second Division Sails.
Libau, Nov. 16.—The second division of the Russian second pacific squadron sailed today. The division is expected to overtake Admiral Voeikorsom's division by way of Suez canal.

Much Work Here.
Birmingham, Nov. 16.—The Post hears that in consequence of the success of the new Japanese loan there will be placing of large contracts for military material in England and America. The Japanese arsenal, says the paper, are unable to meet the demands upon them.

Attack is Expected.
Chansianoutum, Manchuria, Kuro-patkin's Headquarters, Nov. 16.—A Japanese advance is daily expected. Large masses of Japanese troops are moving eastward and the Russians are expecting them to strike at their left flank.

An attack upon the fortified village of Endowunulu, not far from Sin-chinpu, (two miles west of the Shakh railroad station), and fronting the right flank of the Seventeenth corps, was carried out brilliantly during the night of November 10, by the Second brigade of the Thirty-fifth infantry division. The village had been captured the same morning by the Japanese. Subsequently the Russians abandoned the place.

Another Story of Torpedo Boats.
Berlin, Nov. 16.—"It is ridiculous to assert that no Japanese torpedo boats attacked the Russian fleet," wires from Tangier a German wireless telegraph engineer who witnessed what he styles a "battle," in the North Sea on board the Russian volunteer fleet steamer Orel. "The day before the attack," he says, "two balloons were spied and when the squadron met the Russian steamer it warned it that torpedo boats were prepared to attack it. When the Kamchatka signalled that torpedo boats had attacked it the Orel steamed to its assistance, and I saw ten torpedo boats with great bravery steam against the squadron. They could only be beaten off when two had been sunk."

This and other stories have so perplexed the German public that it begins to think some foundation must exist for the Russian version.

ENGINE BLOWS UP AT EAST ST. LOUIS

Two Men Killed by the Explosion.

Robbers Got $1,300 From An Iowa Bank—Ugly Evidence Against California Suspect.

IMPORTANT LAW DECISION

East St. Louis, Nov. 16.—One man was killed, one probably fatally injured, and several others seriously hurt in an explosion of a switch engine on the Southern railroad in that company's yards here last night. The dead man is Albert Andrews, car inspector, and John B. Ranner is fatally injured.

Naval Officer Suicides.
New York, Nov. 16.—Captain A. T. Rouse, 55 of the Royal Naval reserve of Great Britain, committed suicide by taking carbolic acid at his lodgings in West Sixteenth street.

Robbed Iowa Bank.
Iowa City, Ia., Nov. 16.—Four masked men robbed a bank at Boxholm, Iowa. The robbers got $1,200, and officers are in pursuit.

Bloodstains on Clothes.
Auburn, Cal., Nov. 16.—A careful examination of the remnants of clothing thrown by young Adolph Weber into the window of his burning house, the evening of the murder of the Weber family here, it is said, developed the fact that there are bloodstains on the trousers worn by him at the time of the tragedy.

Belongs to Indians.
Sioux City, Ia., Nov. 16.—Judge Munger of the federal court of Omaha has decided that Blackbird Island in the Missouri river opposite Onawa, Ia., and on which many farmers have been given homesteads by the Iowa land office, is in fact in Nebraska, and part and parcel of the original Omaha reservation. The land, therefore, belongs to the Omaha Indians. The island contains thousands of acres and the decision will throw many farmers off their possessions.

HIP FRACTURED.
Aged Wood Mauler Fell Out of His Wagon.

Sanders Whittledge, an aged wood hauler known throughout the city as "Daddy" Whittledge, met with a serious accident this morning.

He was unloading wood at the residence of Attorney A. L. Harner when he lost his balance and fell out of his wagon. "He fell in such a position as to fracture his right leg just below the hip, and the break is a very bad one. The bone was partially shattered and the man suffered a great deal from the wound. Dr. J. S. Troutman was summoned and set the leg and Whittledge was taken to his home on South Third street. He may never fully recover as he is old and such fractures are hard to heal even in a young child.

Whittledge is the son-in-law of Wm. Gipson, the wood hauler whose horse fell into the ditch at Fifth and Washington streets last week and broke its neck.

WHICH CARRIED ARKANSAS STATE?

Republican Chairman Intimates Something is Wrong.

President Roosevelt Last Evening Entertained Japanese Prince at Dinner.

ILLINOIS CONVICT PARDONED

Little Rock, Ark., Nov. 16.—Chairman H. L. Remmel, of the republican state committee, has issued the following statement:
"There is great consternation among the democratic politicians here at the capital. The ticket was short and very little trouble to vote. Six days have elapsed since the election, and returns received at the governor's office are from but 27 out of 75 counties giving the results. Great secrecy is manifested on the part of those who ought to be informed as to the result, all of which is very significant, and from what reports we are receiving it looks very much as though the Roosevelt and Fairbanks electors have carried the state."

Entertains the Prince.
Washington, Nov. 16.—The president yesterday afternoon returned the call of Prince Fushimi. The president spent ten minutes in conversation with the prince. At the White House last night the prince was the guest of honor at a dinner given by the president.

Enters the Pen.
Loliet, Ill., Nov. 16.—Cashier A. H. Butler of the Lockport Exchange bank, which failed a year ago last night entered the penitentiary for an indeterminate term. Several indictments are pending against President Bacon of the same bank.

Killed Two Policemen.
Chicago, Nov. 16.—Wellington C. Llewellyn, a convict at Loliet, has been patrolled in order that he may be taken to Colorado to answer the charge of killing two policemen who were trying to arrest him in Denver, August 13, 1898.

BOOKER'S ADVICE.
Urges His Race to Increase Efforts For Good.

Birmingham, Ala., Nov. 16.—Booker T. Washington has made his first public statement relative to the effect the election of Roosevelt would have on the negroes of the south and on the negro question. He said, in part:

"Not a few have predicted that on account of the result of the recent election many members of our race would lose their heads. With all earnestness I want to urge our people in every part of the country to disappoint those who have made such predictions by leading an increased life of usefulness, soberness and simplicity, remembering that in the long run it is to the certain and fundamental ideas of growth in property, intelligence and high Christian character together with the cultivation of friendly relations with our neighbors of all races, that we must look for our ultimate success."

ONLY $325
Was Brought by the Kentucky Building.

St. Louis, Nov. 16.—At the Kentucky building the work of packing the relics exhibited on the third floor for reshipment has begun.

The Kentucky building was yesterday sold to the Exposition Wrecking company for the sum of $325, representing, as Secretary Hughes figures it, 1 per cent. of the original cost. Many of the articles on exhibition in the Kentucky building that were for sale have been sold, most of them to Kentuckians living in distant states.

DISMISSED FROM POSTAL SERVICE

A Tennessee Man Wrote an Insulting Letter.

Was Disbursing Officer at World's Fair and Refused to Withdraw Statements.

WAS GIVEN EVERY CHANCE

Washington, Nov. 16.—John B. Brownlow, of Tennessee, a clerk in the postoffice department who acted as disbursing officer of the department at the St. Louis exposition, was dismissed from the service by order of the president.

While Postmaster General Payne was yet alive he wrote Brownlow directing that he send to the department a statement of his receipts and disbursements. In response Brownlow forwarded the aggregate sums of his receipts and disbursements. The postmaster general then ordered him to submit to the department an itemized statement. This Brownlow declined to do, accompanying his refusal with statements to the postmaster general which were considered offensive.

Postmaster General Payne presented the matter to the president who ordered that Brownlow be dismissed from the service. Prior to Mr. Payne's death no action was taken in the case. When Postmaster General Wynne took up the subject, he induced the president to consent to allow Brownlow to continue in the service provided he would withdraw his offensive statements to the postmaster general.

Brownlow's accounts have been found correct, and Mr. Wynne told him no reflections had been made on his integrity. Despite this assurance, however, Brownlow, in a letter to Postmaster General Wynne, refused to withdraw the statements he previously had made. An order for his dismissal was signed yesterday.

Mr. Brownlow was also removed from his place as a representative of the postoffice department on the government board for the Louisiana Purchase exposition.

GAVE UP DOG.
To Save Children From a Pack of Wolves.

Phoenix, Ariz., Nov. 16.—Ravenous wolves attacked the three children of C. V. Webb, between Cottonwood, Wash and Pima, and only the sacrifice of a noble and courageous hunting dog saved their lives.

When within two miles of Pima, the young people caught sight of the pursuing pack. Maddened by hunger, the fierce creatures closed upon the children. The leader of the pack and a great gray wolf behind him were attacked by the dog which followed the buggy in which the Webb children were driving. Touched with gratitude, the 14-year-old Webb boy, the eldest of the three, sprang from his buggy and tried to beat off the wolves with his whip stock. One of the wolves sprang for his throat, but the dog caught the throat of the wolf. When Webb regained the buggy the dog was killed, and while the wolves gnawed over its carcass the children escaped to the settlement.

Five Deaths of Hunters in Minnesota From Being Mistaken for Deer.

ALLEGED EMBEZZLERS CAUGHT

Cheyenne, Wyo., Nov. 16.—The two bandits who made a descent on the First National bank of Cody two weeks ago and killed Cashier Midaugh, committed another bold robbery yesterday, when they held up the inmates of a saloon and gambling house at Thermopolis, Big Horn county, and secured a large sum of money, and jewelry. It is said the robbers were recognized as George Merritt and his partner, who killed Midaugh. They escaped to the mountains.

Mistaken For a Deer.
Duluth, Minn., Nov. 16.—Ernest Kent, a telegraph operator, 19 years old, was shot in the woods near Alborn, Minn., evidently by a hunter who mistook him for a deer. He died four hours later while being brought to Duluth. His slayer is unknown. This is the fifth fatality in this vicinity since the present game season opened.

Steel Strike Lost.
Youngstown, O., Nov. 16.—A break has come in the big steel strike here, and men are flocking back to work. There is no question but that the strike is irrevocably lost.

A Big Reward.
Miller, S. D., Nov. 16.—The county commissioners offer a reward of $5,000 for the conviction of the murderers of George Todd and Jacob Johnson. The governor will be asked to offer $1,000, and the county in which the crime was committed will be requested to add $5,000 more. The officers believe this reward will soon result in the discovery of the murderers.

The officers on November 3rd found the dead body of G. M. Todd, a farmer, buried on his farm fifteen miles north of here. His head had been crushed in and two bullets were found in his breast. He had apparently been dead about three weeks. Last June Jacob Johnson, who lived near Todd's farm, disappeared and it is believed he also was murdered. Johnson's body has not been found.

DIRECTORS DECIDE TO CLOSE THE Y. M. C. A.

Interest Has Waned and it Cannot Pay Expenses.

As a result of a meeting of the board of directors of the Y. M. C. A. last night, the association building will be closed, and while the corporation will not be dissolved, it is apparent from the inclination of the people who have been supporting the association, that it will never be started again until the town grows enough to insure its operation without a risk of running it into debt again.

Secretary Duncan presented his resignation last night which was accepted, and then the board decided on stopping the operation of the institution. The affairs of the association were turned over to Attorney J. R. Grogan, president of the association board, for settlement, but he has not made out a schedule of the liabilities yet.

Secretary Duncan stated this morning relative to the suspension of the association: "The action of the board last night was the result of bad management as far as I can see. The association has never been run right by the board and not enough interest was taken in the work to keep interest among the members going. The debts of the association will amount to something over $1,000, and I think the association could pay off all debts and run another year on a subscription of $3,000, but it is said this can not possibly be raised. I am sorry to see the present state of affairs, but from the outset believed that this would be the inevitable result."

Mr. Duncan has been here only a few months but saw what a hard position he was placed in. The association had not been patronized by the members and it was nearly an impossibility to secure new ones. He is a hard worker and though he put forth his best efforts, could not get it on its feet again.

The building is rented from W. H. Riecke and the rent is a little behind, but this is assured Mr. Riecke by individual members of the board. The gymnasium department was built by the association, but will probably be taken charge of by Mr. Riecke and converted into something else. It is not known what will be done with the furnishings until Attorney Grogan, who is out of the city, gets back and begins the work of settlement.

While the association is not elaborately furnished, the carpets, chairs, tables and room furnishings are very good and should bring quite a neat figure if sold. The gymnasium is poorly equipped and will bring little at a sale.

The principal support of the association the past year had come from the sub-rentals and from privileges, but this became too small to support the entire institution.

Mr. Duncan thinks that the association may be reorganized when the city grows, but says that lack of interest now would make it appear foolhardy to continue. The corporation will stand and can be started again at the will of the members.

Most of the debts of the association were contracted the past three years and are for various amounts. An entire list will be called for by President Grogan, but it is expected it will require some little time to secure it.

ANOTHER CHANGE IN THE NEW ROAD

Metropolis After Branch of the Wabash.

A Conference Soon to Be Held
With Messrs. Green and Burns.

PADUCAH FAILED TO GET IT

Metropolis Ill., is again after the Wabash "feeder" that a year or more ago proposed to come to Paducah from Effingham, Ill., for a bonus of $100,000.

The route of the road has never yet been definitely settled, at least so far as to where it will touch the Ohio river, and Metropolis had once abandoned the idea of getting it, but has now renewed its efforts.

Judge Green and N. M. Burns, promoters of the road, have been invited to visit Metropolis and explain their plans, and have accepted. They will go to Metropolis in the near future to hear what proposition the people have to offer for the road.

The Journal-Republican says: "If the line should go to another town, as planned, that place will become the logical point for any other railroads that might come into this territory and eventually would mean bridging the river. With that town growing as it would under such conditions with railroad competition, what inducements could we offer to secure more factories? In fact they would go to the other place. If the railroad should come to Metropolis the scene of activity would be transferred here, and property that would have depreciated under the former conditions would increase in value."

"To secure this railroad might mean a present sacrifice, but if we don't get it and the other town does the prospects are that we will eventually make a large unwilling sacrifice and see our city gradually go backward, instead of forward as she should. We have already let one railroad miss us that should have come here and the question is now up to our citizens whether we as a city can afford to lose another opportunity."

"The future of Metropolis hangs in the balance at this time and whether we go up or down will be decided by the men of the city whose business interests would be benefited the greatest or injured the most by the result."

The present plan is for the road to touch the Ohio near Brookport, and the surveys have already been made and much of the right-of-way secured.

The road, by making a straight line from Effingham, would come through or near Golconda, to a point exactly opposite Paducah on the Illinois shore.

Gentlemen:

A few months ago I had frequent dull aches in my back, my muscles felt sore, I had frequent headache, and my appetite was varying. At times I did not care for food a whole day. The doctor claimed that my liver was inactive, and that this affected my kidneys somewhat. He prescribed for me and I took his medicine for over two months. Finding that this brought no relief, and that I was getting worse, a Lodge friend advised me to try Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. I used three bottles and felt greatly relieved, and after having taken five bottles in all, I was completely cured. I am very grateful for my continued health, and feel it is a daily blessing which I appreciate as never before.

HALLAM CAN STAY SAYS THE COURT

Manager English Lost His Case at Henderson.

A Deal is Now on By Which F. R.

Hallam is to Buy Out Manager English.

AN EXCITING EPISODE

A special to the Sun today from Henderson states:

"F. R. Hallam yesterday won his case in which J. E. English, of Paducah, president of the English Theatre company, attempted to eject Hallam as resident manager of the theatre. The jury was peremptorily instructed to bring in a verdict for Hallam."

"A deal is now on as a result of which Hallam may buy Mr. English's interests."

The evidence devolved the fact that Hallam, who came to Kentucky from Washington, Pa., bought $5,000 worth of stock in the new theatre on condition that he be made resident manager. A contract was signed for three years, which could be terminated at the end of one year if unsatisfactory to either party, by one buying out the other.

A disagreement arose, and an effort was made to cancel the contract with Hallam, and the directors met here and leased the theatre to Mr. T. W. Roberts, treasurer of the Kentucky here. Hallam refused to give it up, claiming that he had priority of claim by reason of his contract, and it seems from the above dispatch that the court sustained him.

It is claimed that Hallam is willing either to give up the theatre if his $5,000 is returned, or to pay Mr. English $7,000 for his interest in it. It is likely now that if the terms can be agreed on, Hallam will buy out Mr. English.

A special from Henderson gives this account of a sensational display involving Manager English and the electrician at the theatre:

"Coincident with the legal controversy now pending in the courts here for the possession of the English Theatre property, warrants were issued late last night against Tutts Braun, electrician of the English Theatre, charging him with drawing a pistol on James E. English, president of the English Theatre company. The other warrant charged carrying concealed weapons. The warrants were sworn out by English. English claims that he went behind the stage during the performance of the Howard Stock company, and that Braun ordered him off at the point of a pistol."

Mr. Tommie W. Roberts and his force returned this morning from Henderson, and Mr. Roberts states that when they saw that they were not going to get a square deal, Mr. English's attorney moved to dismiss the case with prejudice, and he says the case was thrown out on their own dismissal, and not on the court's decision.

Mr. Roberts will remain here if the deal goes through by which Manager English disposes of his interest, and take his former position at the Kentucky theatre. He may have to return to Henderson as a witness in the case in which an effort was made to shoot Mr. English.

A HOBO KILLED UNDER THE TRAIN

Was Caught and Wheels Had to be Rolled off Him.

Smoked a Cigarette While Doctors

Were Amputating His Leg.

GAVE A VARIETY OF NAMES

A tramp was run over and fatally hurt at Mayfield, Ky., after a fight with a companion "hobo," who seems to have struck him in the head with a wagon standard and knocked him under the second section of freight train No. 181. Both had been stealing a ride. Passersby heard a cry of distress and found the injured man still pinioned under the wheels. The train was rolled off of him and he was taken to a doctor's office.

He first claimed his name was W. J. Rogers, of Gainsville, Ga., and said that his uncle was a former governor of Georgia. He afterwards said his name was Ed. Leonard, Montgomery, and Williams. He had a brickmason's card, but there was nothing to show where he belonged.

He displayed remarkable nerve. One leg was crushed and one foot mangled, and he sat on the operating chair and smoked a cigarette while directing where to cut the leg off.

He said he had a brother named Joe Montgomery, St. Louis, with the Hamilton, Brown Shoe company, and told a lot of other conflicting stories.

Yesterday the victim died, and his remains will be consigned to potter's field. It is claimed that after he and his companion arrived on the freight train, both drinking heavily, they engaged in a fight and the dead man had a knife, with which he was cutting at the other, who ran some distance away and was seen returning with a wagon standard.

The next they saw of the man with the knife was when he was pinioned under the car. The other man ran away, and although chased, outstripped his pursuers and escaped. The dead man also had a wound on the head.

The man was about 28 years old and those he gave as his relatives will be notified of his death.

QUICK RUN

FREIGHT TRAIN MADE THE RUN TO CENTRAL CITY IN FOUR HOURS.

One of the best freight runs made on the Paducah district of the I. C. was made this week by Engineer Frank Winters who pulled freight train No. 152, a manifest train, from Paducah to Central City in four hours, and was delayed several times en route.

Winters left Paducah at 10:55 in the morning and arrived in Central City, a distance of 100 miles, at 2:55. Several times en route coal trains and other freight trains blocked him and caused delays of from five to ten minutes. This run has been beaten but not within the last few months when business has been so heavy.

CLERK BAILEY'S HOUSE AFIRE.

The central No. 1 and No. 4 departments were called to the residence of Captain Henry Bailey on South 4th street near Adams this morning about 10 o'clock to extinguish a small blaze in the roof near the flue. No damage was done and the fire was extinguished within a few minutes after the arrival of the fire departments.

—Sam Brown, colored, was arrested this morning by Special Officer Dave Cassell for being drunk.

THROWN OUT

Harry Thompson and Ed Elliott
Painfully Hurt.

Mr. Thompson Struck "Head-on" on the Curbstone and Was Painfully Hurt.

Mr. Harry Thompson, of West Clay street, and Mr. Ed. Elliott, son of Street Inspector Alonzo Elliott, had a narrow escape from being seriously injured last night about 7 o'clock while riding in a buggy.

The horse they were driving was rather wild and near Eleventh and Ohio streets stopped suddenly and began to cut up. The young men in attempting to stop the capers of the animal, were thrown out of the buggy and Mr. Thompson alighted on the curb and his left eye was badly cut and bruised. It required several stitches to close the wound in the eye.

Mr. Elliott escaped with slight bruises. Dr. Johnston Bass was summoned and dressed the injury of Thompson. The latter works at the Hannan plumbing shop, and was able to go to work this morning.

CITY TAXES

LAST HALF NOW BEING COL-LECTED.

Treasurer John Dorian is now collecting the last half of the 1904 tax and says he would like to see the property owners come up a little faster.

"If we could just get the tax payers to understand that the sooner they come up and pay, the better it will be for all, if we could distribute the payments throughout the month and avoid the rush on the last few days, it would be better for all."

The penalty on unpaid taxes goes on after the last day of this month and Treasurer Dorian is expecting the rush to set in daily.

BETTER WORK

IS BEING DONE IN THE PUBLIC SCHOOLS.

"It's remarkable how much interest the teachers are taking in their work," a school officer stated this morning "and wherever you go among teachers you find them talking school. This is what we want and when teachers take such an interest in their work as this, you may feel sure that they are doing their level best and obtaining the best possible results."

"This year the teachers seem to have taken a fresh start in their work and from the very first day of school, and new energy seems to be put forth in their class rooms. The pupils are also more interested in the work and are doing much better."

SPECIAL TRAIN

PASSES THROUGH WITH BAT-TLEFIELD COMMISSIONERS.

This morning at 4 o'clock a special train bearing battlefield commissioners to Vicksburg, Miss., passed through Paducah.

The train was composed of five coaches and remained in Paducah only long enough to change engines. Several race horse men en route to New Orleans were on the train, besides the battlefield commissioners.

DEAL UNDER WAY.

It has been known for several days past that a deal is on foot by which the controlling interest in the Paducah Banking company will pass into the hands of Messrs. Ed. P. Noble and H. C. Overby, but the negotiations have not yet been completed. The new owners were recently in the wholesale grocery business, and Mr. Noble is now president of the Globe Bank. Mr. Will Hughes, it is understood, will sell his interest in the Paducah Banking Co. and move to Ashville, N. C., where his father-in-law, Mr. W. C. Ellis, now resides.

MALARIA IN THE SYSTEM

Holly Springs, Miss., March 24, 1903. While building railroads in Tennessee some twelve years ago a number of hands contracted fever and various forms of blood and skin diseases. I carried S. S. S. in my commissary and gave it to my hands with most gratifying results. I can recommend S. S. S. as the finest preparation for Malaria, chills and fever, as well as all blood and skin diseases. W. I. MCGOWAN.

I suffered greatly from Boils, which would break out on different parts of my body. I saw S. S. S. advertised and after using about three bottles I was cured, and for the last three years have had no trouble whatever. A. W. ZIEGLER, 217 Read St., Evansville, Ind.

I began using your S. S. S. probably ten years ago for Malaria and blood troubles, and it proved so good that I have continued ever since using it as a family remedy. It is a pleasure for me to recommend S. S. S. for the benefit of others who are needing a first rate blood purifier, tonic and cure for Malaria. Arkansas City, Ark. C. C. HEMINGWAY.

Boils, abscesses, sores, dark or yellow spots and debility are some of the symptoms of this miserable disease. S. S. S. counteracts and removes from the blood all impurities and builds up the entire system. It is guaranteed a purely vegetable remedy. Write for medical advice or any special information about case.

TAGGART SEES NO NEED.

New York, Nov. 16.—Thomas Taggart, chairman of the Democratic national committee, announced that he would retain his office until 1908, and that the other officers of the committee would continue, too. He added: "We will go ahead in our work, always looking toward 1908. My headquarters will be either in Indianapolis or French Lick Springs. As regards the reorganization of the Democratic party I will say that the party is all right and needs no reorganizing. It is too early to talk much about the future. Four years is a long time and many things may happen; men of prominence may wane and new stars arise."

ANCIENT SEWER AT OLD FORT MASSAC

Workmen Near Metropolis Uncover a Curiosity.

The New National Park Across the River Now Being Laid Off.

PLANS PROGRESSING WELL

The work of converting "Old Fort Massac," near Metropolis, Ill., into a national park, has begun, and Prof. Blair, of Champaign, Ill., is laying it off.

A water main is to be run to the park from Metropolis, and bids for the keeper's house have been forwarded to Springfield.

The Herald tells of the unearthing of a primitive sewer system from the interior of the redoubt to the river, and says:

"While excavating for a sewerage system at Fort Massac a most remarkable discovery was made. An old sewer was unearthed, which was constructed of boards made box shaped, and running the entire length of the fort and emptying into the river. The wood was perfectly preserved, as hard as flint and seems to be entirely different from any of the wood found in this country. Relic hunters are securing pieces of the wood and converting same into walking sticks. It seems that the original builders of the fort had a pretty good idea of sanitary conditions themselves, and wisely constructed a system of sewerage or drainage peculiar to their means and requirements."

ANOTHER TOY PISTOL.

Maysfield, Ky., Nov. 16.—Tony Featherstone, a ten-year-old boy, while playing "jail" with a crowd of companions, was shot in the left side with a toy pistol by Ezra Hodge. The accident was a great surprise, the pistol being one of the "toy" variety that shoot also "flybats." The boy's condition is not serious unless complications set in.

NOT AN ELK

Remains of Dead Tailor May be Buried Here.

His Mother is Said to be a Resident of Vermont.

An inquest was yesterday afternoon held over the remains of Tim Crowley, the tailor who died at the New Richmond Hotel yesterday from alcoholism. The verdict was that he came to his death from unknown causes. It is said he received very little medical attention.

One man states that Crowley was in a downtown saloon last week drunk and declared that he was going "to drink himself to death." It has been ascertained that he is not a member of the Elks. He was at one time a member of the lodge at Huntington, West Va.

It is said that Crowley's mother is Mrs. Thomas Falter, of Center Rutledge, Vermont. His wife and children are in Louisville, but have no means with which to have the remains taken elsewhere for burial.

It is probable that the remains will be buried at Oak Grove here, and if his family later desire to remove them, may do so.

HURT BY A TRAIN.

Henry Crutchfield, of Fulton, who works on a section gang, was struck by an engine yesterday at Fulton and his right leg badly bruised. Crutchfield was riding on a hand car with several fellow laborers and could not remove the car from the tracks soon enough, the engine striking the car and injuring Crutchfield's leg. The injury is not serious enough to necessitate removal to the local hospital.

TRAIN DELAYED TODAY.

The early morning fast flyer No. 10, from Louisville to Memphis, was delayed three hours this morning by heavy business and delayed connections. The train is due at 3:30 but arrived exactly three hours late. It was composed of ten coaches and was one of the biggest trains to pass through in some time.

YOUTHFUL JUDGES

THREE ELECTED RECENTLY WHO ARE UNDER THIRTY.

Three young men in Western Kentucky have sprung into much prominence as a result of a popular vote in their respective counties in the recent Democratic primaries of November 8, says the Fulton Leader. These young men are Hon. Luby Hargrove, of Fulton county; Hon. Ed Crossland, of Graves county, and A. J. G. Wells, of Calloway county, and each have been honored with the important office of County Judge. It is understood that neither has yet reached the age of 30 years. Each one made a remarkable race and won by good majorities over older campaigners. All three are highly educated and have followed the avocation of school teaching. We predict great future for each of them.

LONG WAGON TRIP.

What is probably the first overland trip ever made by a person known in Metropolis from the far away territory of Oklahoma to our little city has just been accomplished by Thomas Brown and his family of eight.

The conveyance used was an old time prairie schooner and it took several months to cover the distance. The trip was made because of the pleasure and novelty of such venture. Among the several curiosities which he brought along was a prairie dog which is the source of much interest by those having never seen one before. —Metropolis Herald.

SLAB FOUND

MARKING THE GRAVE OF THE FIRST WHITE CHILD BORN IN AMERICA.

Norfolk, Va., Nov. 16.—A slab marking the grave of Virginia Dare the first white child born in America, has just been found in the wilds of Roanoke Island, N. C., where Sir Walter Raleigh and his English colonists settled more than 350 years ago. The grave is located near the south end of Roanoke Island, and many tourists now in this section are planning for a pilgrimage to the historic spot.

PRESIDENT SAYS HE IS GRATIFIED.

Washington, Nov. 16.—President Roosevelt no longer says "de-lighted." Not once has the President, in expressing his appreciation of the splendid support given him, resorted to the use of the term which formerly passed his lips whenever he felt in the least degree pleased. "I am very, very happy over the result," he has been telling his callers. "It was most gratifying, most gratifying."

While Mr. Roosevelt has undoubtedly been tremendously pleased over the vote of confidence given him by the American people, his acquaintances comment on the admirable poise and self-possession with which he has received the gratifying news.

A LITTLE RETROSPECTION.

Of all the confessions of the democratic press since last week's election, that of the Memphis Commercial-Appeal, probably the most influential democratic paper in the south, is the harshest, and the most frank. Sunday's issue contains about two columns, the gist of which is that the democrats didn't stand any chance anyhow with wheat at $1.10 and cotton at 10 cents a pound, but that even if they had the mistakes of the democratic managers and candidates would have defeated them. It says further:

"With a platform that meant nothing, and without any concrete expression from the party for guidance, the campaign was projected and carried on without system or uniform effort. Everyone became a campaign manager. Bryan was coaxed into taking the stump, and he traversed the country like a balm-giving simoon. People flocked to hear him. They were not numbered by the hundreds and the thousands; they were measured by the acre. In Indiana, especially, the people turned out to hear him. The crowds were so great that even his carrying voice could not reach them, and thousands of them could only 'hear his gestures' by the aid of opera or field glasses. Indiana was 'safe.' Tom Taggart said so. Everyone thought so. But the crowds that came to hear Bryan and other democratic speakers voted the republican ticket on election day and carried the state by 75,000. We heard little of northern or eastern speakers. The south sent speakers into 'the enemy's country,' and the people were made to feel that to vote the democratic ticket meant to 'put the south back in the saddle.' A few of the old leaders came out in letters. Cleveland was in his old-time form and hit the bull's eye once or twice. There were complaints heard of lack of funds, disagreement in the national committee and other disheartening things. Matters were at a standstill. There was 'nothing doing.' Parker had been silenced by the managers, and was on record as declaring that he would make no speeches excepting brief ones to delegations visiting him at Esopus. When the crisis came he was induced to reconsider his declaration and take the field.

"Then happened what must always remain in the history of American politics one of the most singular and unaccountable of aberrations. It was not exactly the hara-kiri of the Japanese in which only an individual is concerned. It was more 'running amuck' as practiced in the Malay peninsula. The campaign had been one of follies and follies. Men posing before the nation as statesmen stood before audiences and discussed Roosevelt's teeth. Others declared he had negro blood in him. Others called him war lord at the very moment when a peace convention of the nations of the world had placed him at their head, and when he was trying to bring about peace between Russia and Japan through The Hague arbitration court. Others denounced him because he made it possible to dig a canal at Panama—a work that will last forever and link his name to the future ages when the few mongrel grafters on the isthmus, who are now crying out against him shall have passed from human records. Others vilified him most vulgarly and scurrilously. The press of the country was filled with atrocious cartoons until the people turned from it all in disgust. Devil as he was and black as he was, he was still president. Came Judge Parker. Some of his deliverances deserve to live. Others should be forgotten as soon as possible. The campaign spellbinder took liberties and licenses, and it was overlooked because he was a campaign spellbinder. When a candidate for president charged the president of the United States with taking a man out of his cabinet to blackmail the trusts, and when the charge was emphatically denied the people expected some sort of proof. This Judge Parker did not have. He was forced to ungracefully crawl out of it. When a candidate for president charged that the Philippines cost this country $650,000,000 and 200,000 lives, and the books show that they cost us $200,000,000 and 5,000 lives, people lose faith in the accuracy of his judgment. For these unfortunate 'breaks' Judge Parker was not to blame. He spent his life perusing records and abstractions, and he did not know men. His campaign managers are to blame. They should have furnished him accurate information. When he assailed Gov. Wright of the Philippines he was not aware that he was assailing a gentleman who is conceded to be the strongest man in the south, a man whose politics is no bar to perfect partisanship. Being a reader of records and a dealer in abstractions he did not know this. When he demanded an abandonment of the Philippines he did not know men or that he was hurling himself against the national aspiration for dominion over the surface of the earth. The Anglo-Saxon never willingly gives up real estate. Had Judge Parker consulted himself and asked himself what it would take to induce him to give up his farm at Esopus, which is unproductive, the truth might have dawned on him. Had he looked about him and seen vacant land and lots held by his fellow citizens for half a century or more at an expense, he might have understood why the American people refuse to surrender land for which they have paid. When he cried out against our growing navy he forgot that a democrat, Whitney, projected it, and that we have had a foreign policy and the respect of nations only since we have had a navy. These are a few of the mistakes of the campaign. Wheat at $1.10, cotton at 10 cents a pound, and the Missouri mule proudly switching its whisk-broom tail at $175, might have defeated us anyway, but the mistakes made during the late campaign will defeat us at any time, and they should be avoided."

TREE BROKE AWAY

And Came Near Crushing Popular Farmer to Death.

Mr. Frank Hovecamp, of the Husbands Road, Escapes With Bruises.

Mr. Frank Hovecamp, who resides a few miles from the city on the Husbands road, came near being fatally injured yesterday while cutting down a big tree.

The tree fell against another tree and Mr. Hovecamp struck it with his axe. He was standing near the root when he gave the trunk the blow, and immediately it broke loose and sprang back. Mr. Hovecamp was carried off his feet and hurled a distance of twenty feet. His toes were caught by the trunk and his right foot mashed badly. The leg was bruised and today he can barely get about. Had he been standing directly behind the tree when it worked loose he probably would have been crushed into a pulp.

DISTURB HIS SLEEP

LOCAL OFFICIAL HAS TROUBLE WITH NEGROES.

A local policeman well known among the negroes, because his beat brings him in close touch with them, is continually being bothered by some negro telephoning him at night when he has gone off duty and asleep. "I had just turned in," the policeman explained, "and was about asleep when the telephone began to ring furiously. I jumped up and snatching the receiver down asked what was wanted."

"Am dis Officer —?" a negro's deep voice inquired. I told her that it was and she calmly informed me that Greasy Face Annie or something like that was chasing her with a knife. I asked her what she had been doing to her and she replied, "nothing."

"Then get out of her way, I advised."

"Well, ise dun tole yo' about it, and if dat nigger pusses me any closh ise gwine to cut."

"Negroes seem to think that when ever they are about to get into trouble, that if they telephone a policeman and tell what they intend to do, they are on the safe side. The next morning I learned that Greasy Face Annie didn't push her any closer."

DEATH AT METROPOLIS.

Metropolis, Ill., Nov. 16.—Mr. Townley Roby, who has been making his home in Kansas for several years, is dead. Mr. Roby was a paralytic and recently suffered another attack, which proved fatal. He was brought to this city a few days since in the hope that the change would be of benefit. Deceased was seventy-one years of age, and leaves a wife and two children, the former being 65 years of age. He was in the employ of the government, holding an appointive office, and had a lucrative position.

SISTERS OF CHARITY RELY ON PE-RU-NA TO FIGHT CATARRH, COUGHS, COLDS, GRIP.

Peruna for coughs and colds in children.

SISTERS OF CHARITY

All Over United States Use Pe-ru-na for Catarrh.

From a Catholic institution in Ohio comes the following recommendation from the Sister Superior:

"Some years ago a friend of our institution recommended to us Dr. Hartman's Peruna as an excellent remedy for the influenza of which we then had several cases which threatened to be of a serious character. 'We began to use it and experienced such wonderful results that since then Peruna has become our favorite medicine for influenza, catarrh, cold, cough and bronchitis.'"

SISTER SUPERIOR.

Dr. Hartman receives many letters from Catholic Sisters all over the United States. A recommendation recently received from a Catholic institution in Detroit, Mich., reads as follows:

Detroit, Mich., Oct. 8, 1901.

Dr. S. B. Hartman, Columbus, Ohio.

Dear Sir:—The young girl who used the Peruna was suffering from laryngitis, and loss of voice. The result of the treatment was most satisfactory. She found great relief, and after further use of the medicine we hope to be able to say she is entirely cured."

This young girl was under the care of the Sisters of charity and used Peruna for catarrh of the throat, with good results as the above letter testifies.

Another recommendation from a Catholic institution in one of the Central States written by the Sister Superior reads as follows:

"A number of years ago our attention was called to Dr. Hartman's Peruna, and since then we have used it with wonderful results for grip, coughs, colds and catarrhal diseases of the head and stomach. 'For grip and winter catarrh especially it has been of great service to the inmates of this institution.'"

SISTER SUPERIOR.

A prominent Mother Superior says: "I can testify from experience to the efficiency of Peruna as one of the very best medicines, and it gives me pleasure to add my praise to that of thousands who have used it."

"For years I suffered with catarrh of the stomach, all remedies proving valueless for relief. Last spring I went to Colorado hoping to be benefited by a change of climate and while there a friend advised me to try Peruna. After using two bottles I found myself very much improved. The remains of my old disease being now so slight, I consider myself cured, yet for a while I intend to continue the use of Peruna.

"I am now treating another patient with my medicine. She has been sick with malaria and troubled with leucorrhoea. I have no doubt that a cure will be speedily effected."

MOTHER SUPERIOR.

These are samples of letters received by Dr. Hartman from the various orders of Catholic Sisters throughout the United States. The names and addresses to these letters have been withheld from respect to the Sisters, but will be furnished upon request.

In every country of the civilized world the Sisters of Charity are known. Not only do they minister to the spiritual and intellectual needs of those with whom they come in contact, but they minister to their bodily needs. They are as skilled as trained nurses in their treatment of diseases and are looked upon as messengers of good cheer by countless patient sufferers.

One-half of the diseases which afflict mankind are due to some catarrhal derangement of the mucous membrane lining some organ or passage of the body. A remedy that would act immediately upon the congested mucous membrane, restoring it to its normal state, would consequently cure all these diseases. Catarrh is catarrh wherever located, whether it be in the head, throat, lungs, stomach, kidneys or pelvic organs. A remedy that will cure it in one location will cure it in all locations.

The Sisters find Pe-ru-na a Never Failing Safeguard.

Peruna is such a remedy. The Sisters of Charity know this. When catarrhal diseases make their appearance they are not disconcerted, but know exactly what remedy to use. These wise and prudent Sisters have found Peruna a never-failing safeguard. They realize that when a disease is of a catarrhal nature, Peruna is the remedy. Dyspepsia and female weakness are considered by many to be entirely different diseases. That dyspepsia is catarrh of the stomach and female weakness is due to catarrh of the pelvic organs the Sisters are fully aware, consequently Peruna is their remedy in both these very common and annoying diseases.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case, and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

Address Dr. Hartman, President of The Hartman Sanitarium, Columbus, Ohio.

NOTED STATESMAN

Col. W. C. P. Breckinridge
Stricken by Apoplexy.

It is the Second Time Within the Past Few Weeks.

Lexington, Ky., Nov. 16.—Col. W. C. P. Breckinridge, the noted lawyer, editor and former congressman from this district, was stricken while at his desk in his office this morning, with an attack of apoplexy, and his condition is now considered serious.

This is the second attack he has suffered during the past few weeks, he having been until recently confined to his home for several weeks as a result of the first attack.

His wife and son, Desha Breckinridge, were summoned to his office, where Drs. Clarke and Kinnaird were working with the distinguished patient.

After two hours' work the physicians succeeded in relieving him, when he was again stricken, but the last attack was slighter than the first although grave fears are entertained for his recovery. He was later removed to his home on East High street.

Theatrical Notes

An event of no small importance is the re-appearance of W. E. Nankeville's well known and highly appreciated melodramatic offering "Human Hearts," which will be shown here for the amusement of our theatre goers on Saturday matinee and night at The Kentucky at popular prices.

People who go to see musical comedies and come away making the statement that there is nothing in those light and frothy entertainments will have to hedge when they see "Busy Izzy" at the Kentucky Thursday night. In the second act there is a new bit of business that is bright, novel and extremely funny. It is a broad burlesque on the first part of a minstrel show, played by George Sidney, Fred Wyckoff and Carrie Webber. It is one of the tightest bits of comedy that has ever been introduced into musical farce entertainments. Miss Webber as the pompos interloper with a fondness for using big words and striking poses that will show off her abilities as a comedienne is ably seconded by the two comedians, who act as end men.

"Polly Primrose" is the dainty and alluring title of Paul Wiltach's new comedy in which Adelaide Thurston has made this season's triumph and the play in which she is to be seen at the Kentucky on Monday evening, Nov. 21st. It is a play of forty years ago in quaint and interesting old Georgetown, just outside Washington City. Hoop skirts and peg top trousers, satin waistcoats and dainty bonnets, flowered shawls and frilled shirts, are the fussy and fascinating millinery of this delicious comedy.

PUTTING IT STRONG.

But Doesn't It Look Reasonable?

This may read as though we were putting it a little strong, because it is generally thought by the majority of people that Dyspepsia in its chronic form is incurable or practically so. But we have long since shown that Dyspepsia is curable, nor is it such a difficult matter as at first appears.

The trouble with Dyspepsia is that they are continually dieting, starving themselves, or going to opposite extreme, or else deluging the already overburdened stomach with "bitters," "after-dinner pills," etc., which invariably increase the difficulty even if in some cases they do give a slight, temporary relief. Such treatment of the stomach simply makes matters worse. What the stomach wants is a rest. Now, how can the stomach become rested, recuperated and at the same time the body nourished and sustained.

This is a great secret and this is also the secret of the uniform success of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets. This is a comparatively new remedy, but its success and popularity leaves no doubt as to its merit.

The Tablets will digest the food anyway, regardless of condition of stomach.

The sufferer from Dyspepsia, according to directions, is to eat an abundance of good, wholesome food and use the tablets before and after each meal, and the result will be that the food will be digested no matter how bad your Dyspepsia may be, because, as before stated, the tablets will digest the food even if the stomach is wholly inactive. To illustrate our meaning plainly, if you take 1, 800 grains of meat, eggs or ordinary food and place it in a temperature of 98 degrees, and put with it one of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets it will digest the meat or eggs almost as perfectly as if the meat was enclosed within the stomach.

The stomach may be ever so weak, yet these tablets will perform the work of digestion and the body and brain will be properly nourished, and at the same time a radical, lasting cure of Dyspepsia will be made because the much-absent stomach will be given, to some extent, a much needed rest. Your druggist will tell you that all of the many remedies advertised to cure Dyspepsia none of them have given so complete and general satisfaction as Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, and not least in importance in these hard times is the fact that they are also the cheapest and give the most good for the least money.

ECHOES FROM THE WAR

A Russian View of the Enemy's Fighting Tactics.

RECOVERY OF WOUNDED JAPANESE

Remarkable Display of Nerve by the Soldiers When Under Treatment.
An Incident of the Battle of Liaoyang—Horror of the Conflict—Russian Volunteers.

Yes, we were greatly mistaken when we called them "little Japs." We have never before had to deal with such skillful opponents, says the Russkoye Slovo. They have included in their tactics all modern methods, strictly adapting them to their own national peculiarities. For instance, knowing the weakness of their cavalry, they never allow it to go out unsupported. There is always infantry behind it, and our cavalry often runs against it, not expecting its presence.

The Japanese reconnaissance is effected thus: A compact force of riflemen marches, sustained by screens, and patrols move about five versts ahead. At a distance of three versts the scouts are preceded by a number of Chinese. These last come to the Russian lines, examine the camp and make signals to the Japanese concerning the whereabouts of the cavalry patrols. As the country is mountainous, they advance at the rate of seven versts a day, in-trenching and fortifying every step they take. Their path is an uninter-rupted row of fortifications. Knowing the excitable, impressionable temper of their soldiers, they never pursue the enemy before settling down in good order upon the position occupied, because during a pursuit troops often become disarranged. Judging by their operations, one could imagine they are the most phlegmatic and methodical people in the world—so strong in their military education and their knowledge of the art of war. They very reasonably avoid the bayonet. Their leading ranks run away to the right and left, opening the front for the fire of the succeeding lines. Running round these to the rear, they again form their ranks, thus taking the place of reserves.

If the troops uncovered are unable to stop our attack by fire they repeat the maneuver. What self control, what discipline, are required in order to do this, and what a consciousness of strength! When they are on the march it is all but impossible for them to meet with any surprises. In addition to the men detached for guard, they surround their columns by chains of scouts, who advance along the crests of the elevations. Movement under such conditions may be slow, but it is sure.

One of the most interesting points brought out in the present war is the way the Japanese wounded heal, says Will Livingston Comfort, the correspondent of the Chicago News in Japan. A dispatch from Tokyo states that there are 45,000 wounded now under care in the various Japanese hospitals and that the results of treatment are most gratifying. This can readily be believed. The writer returned from Manchuria to Moji, a port of southern Japan, last May as the wounded were being brought in from the battle of the Yalu and passed some time in the Japanese hospitals. The way the soldiers bore up under wounds and recovered was astounding. Patients with fresh bullet holes through their breasts tumbled out of their cots to be examined standing. There were no screams of pain. One could not avoid the conclusion that a wound capable of racking white flesh with the extremest torture merely itched the Japanese.

Operations and blood poison cases are hardly known. I saw a soldier who has been shot through the left eye, the bullet emerging from the base of the brain, stand before the surgeon and relate in a low, monotonous voice how it all came about. Meanwhile the surgeon was removing the tightly adhering lint from the wound with the carelessness of one who is tearing plaster from a statue. There was no softening with hot water, but the patient didn't mind. Great rents in the brown flesh from lance and saber thrusts drew together and knitted by first intention, almost under the eye. Watch a severed earthworm unconcernedly working out its unity, and you have a parallel of healing.

John F. Bass, writing to the Chicago News from Yokohama, relates the following incident of the battle of Liaoyang: "A correspondent saw a wide circle of Japanese soldiers on the morning of Sept. 4 intent on some object. Pushing forward, he tried to enter the ring. A soldier seized him violently by the arm and threw him back with a stern exclamation. Just then a shot came as if from the ground. A soldier who spoke English explained: 'There are Russian soldiers in a cave, and they will not surrender. Whenever any one attempts to approach the entrance of their retreat a shot comes out.' 'After a time the Japanese got some matting and, throwing it over the mouth of the cave, attempted to smother the occupants into submission. The trick succeeded, for after a time a rifle with a bayonet was shoved up into the air. A soldier got a piece of wire, reached cautiously over, hooked it on to the Russian rifle and drew it to him. In a moment the wild, savage head of a Russian protruded. He stepped out of the hole and stood glaring about him with folded arms. A second rifle was handed out in the same way and then a third and fourth until six Russian soldiers, maddened and grim with battle, stood defiantly side by side glaring first at the Japanese and then at the white man standing in the midst of them. The correspondent snapped his camera. It was the best picture of the war."

A story comes from Moscow which shows pretty clearly the different views that the government and the common people take of the war, says the St. James' Gazette. Two men were out walking when they saw a crowd jostling and shoving, while from within the crowd came loud sobs, cries of pain, oaths and blows. "What on earth is the matter?" said the first man. "Oh," said his companion indifferently, "it is only a government officer forcing a peasant to turn volunteer."

In a letter from a Russian officer read by Rabbi Charles Felscher of Boston before his audience at the Baptist temple in Philadelphia the other night an account was given of the atrocities practiced by both Japanese and Russians, and it stated that the men, throwing aside their weapons in many cases, choked their Japanese opponents to death.

SONG FOR ANNAPOLIS.

One From Emilio Brugutero's Pen
For the Naval Academy.

The United States Naval Academy is to have an Alma Mater song, says the New York Globe. Emilio Brugutero, the composer of "The Barones Fiddlesticks," has been asked to write it, and the other day the lyrics were submitted to the president of the academy and the admiral of the navy and approved. It is a remarkable fact that ever since the Naval academy was established in 1845 the superb school at Annapolis has had no college song. The song, written at the instigation of John C. Sweeney, is as follows:

ALMA MATER O!
Come, gather round, my classmates, and
Join our greeting song.
With books we've done, our swords we've won, our hearts beat but one and strong:
We've formed the tie, 'twill never die,
Wherever we may go.
It breathes the old academy, our Alma
Mater O!

CHORUS.
Our Alma Mater O! we'll hail thee as we go.
On every sea we'll cherish thee, our Alma
Mater O!

Come, join our song, my shipmates from cruisers far and wide.
We've borne the flag on many a ship o'er ocean's boundless tide.
We've seen our arms triumphant where'er
the conflict rages.
The trophies of our victories deck our Alma Mater's walls.

Come, comrades all and messmates, raise
every seaman's voice,
In Mater's cheer and memory dear let every heart rejoice.
We'll consecrate the quarter deck, the altar of our hearts to thee,
In youth, in age, we'll foster there the genius she inspires.

A USE FOR STRAWBERRIES.

Society Women Find Canned Product
Good For Cleaning Teeth.

Purveyors to society have been amazed during the last few days at the extraordinary demand for canned strawberries, says the New York Press. Why women able to purchase the unfrozen fruit direct from hot-houses should want the commoner article of commerce was not apparent until one of them learned the canned goods were not eaten. In fact, the tin was no further than madam's dressing table. Confidentially, the contents are used as a dentifrice.

An enterprising woman discovered last spring strawberries were good for the teeth, not only in whitening and preserving them, but to harden the gums and, of course, sweeten the breath. She made the most of her knowledge and shared it with her friends while the season for the fresh fruit lasted. Then she was about to make arrangements for delivery of strawberries from the hot-houses of gentler climes when, on experiment, she found the canned fruit even better for her purpose. She kept her second secret all summer, but her friends wormed it out of her; hence the tremendously increased demand for the tins and the possibility of a rise in price prohibitive to the poor.

Labor Union on Novel Plan.

A unique union has been formed by Louisville (Ky.) carpenters, says a special dispatch from Louisville, Ky. It will be known as Independent Carpenters' Union No. 1. Its objects are:

A union that believes in the open shop.
A union that will have no walking delegates and no members except first class mechanics.
A union whose first object is to prevent strikes and lockouts.

It will be independent of all central organizations and will not affiliate with the international body, but will accept all recommendations made by the Employers' association of Louisville and work in harmony with that body.

King Edward's Latest Title.

At a farewell banquet given the other night to a number of leading French physicians who have been visiting London hospitals, Dr. Sir William Broadbent, physician in medicine to the king, in toasting his majesty conferred a new title upon him, says a special cable dispatch to the Chicago Tribune. Referring to the king's influence upon international politics, Dr. Broadbent said he had shown himself to be the "lightning conductor of Europe."

Fancy Lights For Mountain Trains.

Locomotives on the Denver and Rio Grande are to be fitted with adjustable electric flashlights by which trains approaching each other on curves in the mountains may give warning by throwing rays into the air, says a Denver dispatch. The lights will be red.

Selfishness and Sympathy.
(From Leslie's Magazine.)

From the top of a mountain you can see into the valley around about—your horizon is very broad, and you can distinguish the details that it encompasses; but from the valley you cannot see the top of the mountain and your horizon is limited.

This illustrates truly the breadth and power of—wholesome human sympathy. With a real love for human nature—if a man has a clear, high standard of his own—a standard which he does not attribute to his own intelligence—his understanding of the lower standards of other men will also be very clear, and he will take all sorts and conditions of men into the region within the horizon of his mind. Not only that, but he will recognize the fact when the standard of another man is higher than his own, and will be ready to ascend at once when he becomes aware of a higher point of view. On the other hand, when selfishness is sympathizing with selfishness, there is no ascent possible but only the one little low place limited by the personal selfish interests of those concerned.

CONSTIPATION.

Health is absolutely impossible, if constipation be present. Many serious cases of liver and kidney complaint have sprung from neglected constipation. Such a deplorable condition is unnecessary. There is a cure for it. Herbine will speedily remedy matters. C. A. Lindsay, P. M., Bronson, Fla., writes Feb. 12, 1902: "Having tried Herbine, I find it a fine medicine for constipation." 50c bottle. Sold by DuBois, Kolb & Co.

LOVE AT FIRST SIGHT

[Copyright, 1904, by K. A. Whitehead.]
"If mademoiselle wishes"—began the clerk.

"Pardon, monsieur, I am Mme. Montresor," interrupted the young woman. "If madame wishes," corrected the clerk, "I am sure that M. Grigon would allow the buckle to be sent to the hotel. Certainly! Yes."

"But I do not wish him to send it to the hotel," replied Mme. Montresor. "I will call again tomorrow, and then perhaps M. Grigon may be in."

"We thank you," said the clerk. Mme. Montresor left the jewelry shop in the Rue Scribe and walked slowly until she met at the next corner a man who bowed gravely to her and fell easily into step at her side.

"He was not there," remarked madame briefly.

"Too bad," said the man. "Another day lost."

"Yes," said madame, "and it is expensive, this staying at the Hotel Ritz. How much is left now?"

"About 2,000 francs."

"Well, that's enough for another week," mused madame as she and her companion walked toward the hotel.

The following day Mme. Montresor and the man walked into Grigon's shop again. The clerk who had waited upon her came forward. "M. Grigon is within," he said.

M. Grigon stepped forward. "What would it be that you wish?" he inquired.

Then he looked at the young woman. The man who had accompanied her strolled toward the door and stood swinging his walking stick.

"My father," began madame, "Herr Rudolph Richter, wishes me to select the gift which he proposes for my birthday. Yesterday your assistant was good enough to show to me a diamond buckle which would please me."

Grigon stared at her again. Her eyes dropped, and a faint flush came into her cheeks under the steady gaze.

"Would it be the Burma buckle?" asked Grigon finally.

"Perhaps. The man did not say," replied madame.

Grigon turned to a huge safe and took from it a tray containing gems which an expert would have valued at more than one fortune.

"That is the one," said madame, pointing to a most beautiful piece in the tray.

"That is the Burma buckle," said Grigon.

"And its price?" inquired madame.

"Eighty thousand francs," said Grigon.

Madame picked up the buckle and held it to her throat. "Is it well there?" she asked, and her glance fell straight into the eyes of Grigon.

"Adorable!" said the Frenchman.

"Tomorrow," continued madame, "is my birthday, the first since the death of my husband, and my father desires to give me what I like best. Now, if monsieur would be good enough to bring the buckle to the hotel tonight I have no doubt but that Herr Richter will purchase from him."

That evening Grigon went to the Hotel Ritz. Herr Richter appeared, saying that his daughter was in the garden. With Grigon he went in search of her.

They found her in the balcony. Grigon seated himself beside her, and Herr Richter walked away.

Grigon took the wonderful gems from the case. "I do not know," he began, "if madame understands love at first sight. She has had the goodness to tell me that she has been but recently made a widow through the unfortunate death of her husband. I have seen madame driving in the Bois these many years, but until yesterday when she came to my shop I had not known how much I loved her. If madame will deign to show me the favor of hoping that I may ask her to be my wife, then she will accept from me the Burma buckle in token of her favor."

Madame looked at him wonderingly. "Monsieur is good," she said.

Grigon laid the buckle in her hand. "It shall be as madame wishes," he said. He bowed and bade her good night. On the veranda he met Herr Richter. "I have asked your daughter to be my wife," he said, "and I have left with her the Burma buckle for her birthday gift."

Richter went back to the balcony. Madame held up the buckle for him to see.

"That was easier than stealing it," he said briefly.

Then he continued: "What will you do? Shall we take the midnight train for Berlin?"

"No," she replied. "I shall marry him. Then I shall give the gems to you."

A month later Grigon and Mme. Montresor were married. She wore the Burma buckle at her throat. The following day the papers told how Mme. Grigon had been robbed of her jewels, and later in Berlin the jewelers were buying unset gems of great value from a man who would have been recognized in the Rue Scribe as Herr Richter, the father of Mme. Montresor.

But Grigon had more gems, and he told his wife that the loss of the buckle should be replaced on her next birthday.

HALLIE
RIVES

A scant 200 yards was all there was between the two boats when Armand sprang upon the wharf of Gladden Hall. "Leave me," she begged faintly, "and save yourself! You have yet time."

"Give me your hand!" he commanded peremptorily. He took it and led her, running, up the sloping lawn.

Its unkempt forlornness was softened by the kindly moonlight, and not until they reached the front of the house did its gray desolation become all at once apparent. The panes in the windows were broken, the white pillars battered, the front door swinging, the yard unsightly with rubbish.

"This deserted!" Despair was in his tone.

"I told you that."

"Are there no horses?"

"The barns are burned. Leave me, leave me and go!"

He hurried her to the front door, and they entered, hearing as they did so the larger boat bump the planking. Without a word he shot home the bolts in the great door and drew her into the dining room, now overgrown with broken crockery. He locked both doors of this room, smashed the sashes of the porch windows with a chair, brought together the heavy outer blinds and slid the bars. As he fastened the second of the pursuers came tumbling to the porch. Anne, meantime, taking a clem from him, had managed to fasten one of the windows in the opposite side. He sprang to secure the other before the soldiers reached the back of the house.

This shut out the last of the moonlight, and the room became a black darkness. Outside was a demented clamor, curses and shouts to fetch ship's lanterns and search the empty quarters for an ax. Anne could hear Armand's convulsive breathing.

She had groped her way to the sideboard and opened its candle drawer. A tiny half inch end rewarded her. Flint and steel struck them in their accustomed place. She struck them and lighted the wick with trembling hands.

As she did so a heavy body came hurtling against the other side of the inner door. "Better give up, you wretch," panted a voice.

Armand answered loudly, "If I do will you promise to let the lady go?"

"No, no!" Anne brought in an agony. "You shall not give yourself up to them! They would not hold to such a promise."

With her cry, however, whirled a scramble of curses. "We'll lay you by the heels and take the girl back, too, curse you!" And a rain of blows descended on the door, while a crash against one of the blinds shook the wall.

Leaping back, Armand dragged out the heavy mahogany sideboard, now slashed and dented, and set it against one door. The other he re-enforced with the overturned table and bound this to its place with the twisted window curtains. Last, he wrenched an iron from the fireplace and stood waiting. At the same moment the candle end collapsed, the wick dropped, flickered and went out, and darkness fell around them again.

A full had come in the attack. Evidently a consultation was being held. The blackness seemed to lie upon Anne's soul like a heavy weight, and Armand's silence became unbearable.

"What shall we do?" she asked dully.

"We cannot hold out for long."

But there was no reply.

"I—I am so frightened," she said piteously. "This dark! Come to me, Louis!"

She listened, but he made no stir.

"You will not come to me, will not pity or comfort me?" she entreated through the void. "Yet tonight I tried to save your life."

"For what end? You who took from it all that makes life sweet! I trusted you!" She shrank at the ring of scorn in his voice. "I trusted you?"

"And I you," she answered. "I loved and hoped and trusted too. After they took you from here that evening, every night when I went to bed I said a prayer and kissed my poor hand to you in the dark. And I have done so every night since then—every night, Louis."

"Something like a sob sounded in the room, and she stretched out her arms toward it."

"I tried to keep my promise. You remember when they lashed the bond woman? She woke with a crazed brain, and the packet—your packet—was gone. All those months I searched and found it at last by chance. I did not get to Philadelphia with it till that morning."

There was no further answer, and she slipped on her knees, feeling a yearning that was like a poignant sickness.

"You must hear," she went on pleadingly, clasping her fingers, "and believe me or my heart will break. Fate put me in the recess of the window at the Red Lion tavern, Louis. I saw Jarret give you the forged message—saw you fight and run him through. I knew you were true—true to your master's honor and your own."

"You accused me!" The words struck her. "Accused me to the Continentals?"

"Listen! Listen to me!" she prayed desperately. "I must tell you it all now—now at the end. Jarret showed me the paper—the contract that bound you to give your life—your life! And I knew you would do it. Oh, what that meant! I would have given my own life a hundred times to prevent it. Can you think what it cost me to stand in that room and say that—that of you? Your face was dreadful! I thought I should die when you looked at me!"

"No, no! Not that—I did not mean that, Louis! I had such little time to think—such small time to reason. I had only time to feel—to feel as a woman will, and to act. I had to defeat the contract to keep you from going back to the prison—to death. I thought I could clear you at the last. I who knew you were true, because I had the packet—the true message. Only I promised my soul that I should not speak within the month."

"Give me your hand!"

Her voice broke a little here, then went on in a sudden pathos of pleading: "What know we women of soldier's duty or soldier's honor—we who are cherished and trusted all our lives? We know only to love, to follow—and—to save what we love in spite of all the world!"

There was a movement now, a step.

"Then I took the packet, Louis, into the congress to Dr. Franklin that very hour, and I could not tell you what I had done—and you escaped them. I thought you had gone to your death. And you didn't know! You never knew. Oh," she sobbed, "if you would only forgive me, only touch me, only lay your hand on my head!"

She heard a stammer, a smothered cry. The iron bar clanged against the door. An arm, groping, trembling, touched her wet cheek.

"My God! And I doubted you!" Armand's voice thrilled her in a great burst of grief-wound joy. "You gave the message? My darling, my darling!"

She felt herself caught up in his arms in the dark, shuddering, crying, panting incoherent phrases, kissing his face, his rough coat, his epaulets, strangling with fierce terror and ecstasy of love and feeling his passion strain and fold her. It seemed to her that all of life and death was concentrated in that one embrace—that nothing existed in the world but the delirium of that single sweet little moment.

A medley of shouts and ax blows on both of the doors at one time sent her into quick spasms of dread. A panel splintered, a shaft of light and an arm thrust in. Armand released her, struck once with the iron bar, and the man fell back, cursing with a broken arm.

"Shoot!" she shouted. "Are we to be bayed by this rat?"

"Don't fire," came the response. The order was imperative.

NEWS OF THE RIVERS.

The whistle on the old George H. Cowling was last Saturday taken off and put on the new George Cowling in place of the one that was purchased for the new boat. The old whistle is as good as is to be found on any boat and our people liked to hear it. In fact Capt. Cowling could not become accustomed to the new whistle's tone and now rejoices over the change.—Metropolis Journal-Republican.

There has been no change in the local gauge since last Saturday, the stage still being seven tenths of a foot and standing. The weather does not indicate anything like rain.

There were no boats in or out today. The Tennessee river packet is still due and is due to leave again tonight.

Many of the old river men do not expect any rise of consequence in the Ohio river until January or February, possibly later.

The Childishness of Love

(Original.)

In 1895 there was a girl named Marguerite Bouryrenval in France who had then been asleep or in a trance for eleven years. Corinne Butterfield, a little Yankee girl, went to sleep one night and did not awaken for ten years, but when she did awake she found as great a change in her surroundings as did Rip Van Winkle after his long slumber.

One night as Corinne was going to bed she was very badly frightened. She had lain her doll down on the bed, where it would be beside her when she slept, and had said her prayers when a burglar entered the room. Corinne lost consciousness and from that time forward lived in a trance. Her mother would not permit anything in the room to be changed, and when ten years later Corinne awoke there about her were the same walls, curtains, furniture—indeed, everything—just as it had been when she had gone to sleep ten years before, even to her doll beside her. There was no one in the room when she emerged from her trance, and she was obliged to get her bearings as best she could. She had no remembrance of her fright, but it seemed to her that she had passed a very bad night, sleeping heavily. She drew her doll up to her, but somehow it did not seem to have the same place in her emotions as the night before. She sat up in bed, and there in the mirror on the dresser, where she had been used to seeing herself reflected, was the image of a girl of twenty.

Corinne started. Who was that lovely creature with a long coil of plaited hair hanging over her shoulder? From the image she turned to herself and saw that her limbs and body had grown, her breast had filled out—indeed, she was a woman. And by looking from herself to the reflection she was soon convinced that she and it were one and the same.

It would be impossible to portray the feelings of this girl, so suddenly awakened to the fact that since what was to her the night before she had become a woman. On a chair beside her bed was a complete set of clothing which her mother had always kept there, changing it as Corinne grew older and larger. Getting out of bed, she sat on a chair—for she did not at once dare stand—put on the clothes and as soon as she had done so, holding on to the furniture as she proceeded, left her room.

When Corinne had gone to sleep she had a little sweetheart, Bennie Hoyt, a fine little fellow thirteen years old. Bennie had watched the sleeper, seeing her grow from childhood to womanhood, and the love of a boy had passed to that of a man. He was used to coming to the house where lay his sleeping love every morning before going to business. When Corinne reached the landing and was about to go downstairs the front door opened, and a young man entered. Looking up, he saw her. A thrill of joy lighted up his face. He stretched out his arms to her and exclaimed, "Thank God!"

Corinne stood holding on to the banister, while the man, quickly mounting the stairs, took her in his arms, drew her to his breast and covered her face with kisses.

Corinne's sensations at this treatment were very different from anything she had ever experienced before. There was nothing unusual in being kissed by a man—she had sat on a man's lap, with her arms around his neck—but now these caresses brought the blood to her cheek.

"Tell me," she exclaimed, "who are you? Who am I? What does it all mean?"

"You have slept for ten years," he said. "Come; I will tell you all about it."

Young Hoyt was eager to spread the good news that the sleeper had been awakened, but there was no one just then in the house except the servants, so he led Corinne downstairs to the library, where he told her of her scare of ten years before, how it had thrown her into a trance, how she had been cared for by those nearest to her and how his childish affection of a decade before had grown while she slept to the love of a man.

"And now, dear heart," he said, "your love for me has stood still. I shall have to win you as a man. This I hope to do, and soon you will be my wife."

"And shall we have a little house of our own, with dinner sets and furniture and a place for dolly?"

The last few words were spoken hesitatingly, with a glimmer of consciousness that her doll would give place to a doll of a different kind. She blushed and hid her face on his breast.

Hoyt started. He had often thought of this awakening and had endeavored to prepare himself for a mind that had not been developed with the body. He had feared that Corinne's deficiency would dissolve the love he bore her.

Some one has said that lovers are nothing more than grown children. Hoyt discovered that, instead of wishing to bring Corinne up to his standard, he, as a lover, sank down to hers. She was to him "my sweet little girl," "my own pet," "dear bunny." A dozen times a day he asked her: "Are you growing to love me?" "Are you sure you don't love any one else?" "Would you miss me if I should go away?" "What would I do if I should lose my little birdie?"

The courtship was a long one, for Corinne must condense eight or nine years' schooling into three or four. When she was twenty-three they were married and began to talk about practical things like men and women. But, had it not been that lovers are children, when she awoke Hoyt would have left her for a mentally developed woman.

Use Shoffner's Sure Cure

The Great Tonic and Blood Purifier—Cures Indigestion, Dyspepsia and Catarrh.

It is a trite and true saying that the "blood is the life." Now where does the blood come from? Everybody knows, or should know, that it comes from the nutritive elements extracted by the stomach from the food we eat. If the digestive organs do not perform their functions by reason of disease germs, there is no nutrition extracted, and the food might better be thrown in the dump to decay and breed germs in the open air than to remain in the stomach and become a rotten, putrid mass, as it naturally does if there is no digestion. No disease germ can live and find lodgment in a human body that uses the Shoffner's Sure Cure. Price $1.00.

What People Say of the Shoffner's Sure Cure.

PADUCAH, KY., March 5, 1903.

To Whom It May Concern:

This is to certify that I was a sufferer with indigestion for five years and could get no relief until I bought one bottle of Shoffner's Sure Cure, and it helped me so much that I took six bottles and it has cured me sound and well, thanks to the Shoffner's Sure Cure.

Mrs. JOHN SMEDLEY, 806 S. Third St.

This is to certify that I believe the Shoffner's Sure Cure saved my life. I was not able to sit up in bed when I began taking the remedy. I had such a severe cough I thought I had consumption. Physicians had given me up to die. After taking one bottle I was able to sit up some. After using five bottles I was fully restored to health. I cannot say enough in favor of this wonderful remedy for indigestion.

Mrs. SUE GRAHAM, Moscow, Ky.

If after using one bottle according to directions you are not benefited, your money will be refunded.

KENTUCKY NEWS TOLD IN PARAGRAPHS CORLIS COMES HOME FROM WORLD'S FAIR

THORNE'S PROTEGE IN EUROPE.
Louisville, Ky., Nov. 16.—Clem Buchter, who two years ago killed his daughter because she would not submit to his base desires and who was recently pardoned from the penitentiary by Lieutenant Governor Thorne, is now in Europe. It was reported that he went from here to Cincinnati, but now it is known that he is in Europe.

NEGRO MISER MURDERED.
Owensboro, Ky., Nov. 16.—The body of Noble Poole, a negro miser of Ohio county, was found in his home at Fordsville. He was dead in his chair. His skull had been crushed by a blow given him with a hammer. The weapon was by his side. A negro who had been stopping at Poole's home for several days has disappeared. The citizens of Ohio county have offered a reward for the negro's arrest, and have also appealed to the governor to offer a suitable reward.

Poole was about 50 years of age, and was well known by the white people. He had amassed considerable money, and kept it at his home.

DEFERRED UNTIL FEBRUARY.
Nicholasville, Ky., Nov. 16.—Constitutionality of the Day bill, which prohibits co-education of white and colored pupils, was attacked here by John G. Carlisle upon a demurrer to an indictment found against Berea college. The cause was only partly argued, when, by agreement, leave was given to file briefs, and the case was set for the February term of the Madison county circuit court.

DYING OF CANCER.
Louisville, Ky., Nov. 16.—L. H. Ball, former editor and proprietor of the Catholic Advocate, is dying at his home, 210 West St. Catherine street, of a cancer, which developed on his hip more than two years ago. He learned shortly afterward from his physicians that his malady was incurable and retired to private life. Mr. Bell has been confined to his room for over two months and it is believed that he cannot live more than a week longer at the most.

BRIDE IS THIRTEEN.
Hopkinsville, Nov. 16.—Walter Fowler, a young man 21 years old, eloped from Crofton with Miss Kate Boxley, a daughter of Mr. Julian Boxley, who will not be 14 years old until next March. Mr. Boxley had frustrated a previous attempt to elope before and at once telephoned to all neighboring towns to head them off. After failing in Clarksville they succeeded in getting married in Dover.

VETERAN DIES.
Fulton, Ky., Nov. 16.—Capt. W. R. Boaz, one of the best known Confederate Veterans in this section, died here from old age, being past 75. He was one of the most conspicuous officers under Gen. Forrest, and had lived here for many years. He leaves several brothers and sisters.

Passed Through Paducah Today on His Way to Metropolis, His Home.

FACTS ABOUT THE SHOOTING

Mr. Thrift Corlis and wife were in the city today guests at the Palmer, en route to their home in Metropolis, Ill., from St. Louis, where Mr. Corlis was a day or two ago an eyewitness to a sensational shooting affray. They left on the 11 o'clock boat today for Metropolis.

Mr. Corlis has been treasurer of the "Mysterious Asia" show on the Pike.

The Globe-Democrat says: While in the act of demanding an explanation for an alleged insult offered to his mother by John T. Corlis, treasurer of Mysterious Asia on The Pike, Ferdinand Akoun, manager of the Temple of Mirth, was shot in the head and seriously wounded by Alfred O. Laws, a watchman in Mysterious Asia at 6 o'clock last night.

The shooting occurred in the street in Mysterious Asia while the place was crowded with sight-seers and caused much excitement. Laws, who took the part of Corlis, immediately fled through the office of the concession, across The Pike and down the side street leading to The Pike entrance. He was followed by a large crowd bent on capturing him. He drew his revolver again and flourished it recklessly, threatening to shoot anybody that approached him. Sergeant Fred Armstrong, of the World's Fair police, shouted to the gate keepers not to let Laws out of the grounds. He succeeded in taking the revolver from his hand and arrested him. Akoun was taken to the emergency hospital, where he was operated upon by Dr. Moore. The wound was pronounced dangerous, but not necessarily fatal. Corlis was arrested, but was bailed out at 8 o'clock by officers of the Mysterious Asia company.

Some person connected with the show told Ferdinand Akoun of the trouble and he started to look for Corlis. He met him at 6 o'clock in the court near the main entrance to the show and demanded an explanation.

Corlis started to get a witness to prove the woman had intruded, when Laws is said to have exclaimed, "Don't get any witness. Give him satisfaction now," at the same time drawing his revolver and firing twice. The first bullet struck Akoun near the chin and passed out at the right temple. The second missed its object, and Corlis and he ran to the office. Laws ran through the office door opening on the Pike and Corlis hid his revolver in a drawer. He remained in the room. The crowd followed the fleeing man and Sergeant Armstrong, who happened to be outside, followed and captured him. Corlis was arrested on a charge of threatening to shoot Akoun's mother, who preferred the charge.

At last accounts the wounded man was resting easily, and Corlis came away, presumably to keep from testifying.

He is a well known young man, a son of Ed Corlis, of Metropolis, who is a well known traveling man. He married Miss Essie Jones, daughter of the late Judge Ben O. Jones, his wife having a number of relatives in Paducah and having often visited here. He is a cousin of Frank Corlis, a well known traveling salesman of St. Louis who comes to Paducah every few weeks.
